

Livestock Risk Protection

LRP is a price insurance policy used to mitigate price risk for feeder cattle, fed cattle, and swine. With LRP, a selling price floor is established for the livestock. It protects solely against a decline in price. The policy pays a producer if a regional/national cash price index falls below the selected coverage level. LRP offers flexibility; coverage level, # of head, timing of purchase, length of coverage, and target weight at end of coverage.
